CHANCELLOR ADDRESSES THE CLASS OF 2010

Graduates, you’ve finally made it!

Within a few hours you will have your diploma in hand: thanks to your parents, your grandparents, your professors, your friends, any and all of whom may have helped you reach this important day. You have my sincere congratulations.

I hope you’ve enjoyed your time at Bishop’s and made some real and lasting friends, friends who will stand by you when needed. University is the place where the ties of friendship are often strongest.

I hope too that you have gained from your experience both inside and outside the classrooms, that you found interesting courses and that you connected with your professors. This is an educational institution.

But Bishop’s is much more than an educational institution, which is why I hope you have acquired a love of learning, a realization that education is a life long pursuit, that graduation gets you to the start line and your education moves on from here.

At Bishop’s you have been given the chance to develop an inquiring mind, a reason to exercise your imagination, and the incentive to break through any boundaries that may surround you – regardless of the career you choose to pursue.

If you are up for this challenge, you will discover endless windows of opportunities, worlds undreamt of. This is the gift of a liberal arts education; this is the inheritance of the Bishop’s experience.

When you walk away from this campus and embark on life’s great adventure, remember, graduates, that you carry with you our hopes, our dreams, our expectations.

No need to look back, just promise you will not forget us at Bishop’s – for we shall not forget you. You represent our investment in the future.

That is the promise we ask of you and, with that promise in mind, we are ready to celebrate your graduation, accept your departure and look forward to your return for a reunion of the Class of 2010.

In this issue you will find our annual donor report for the Bishop’s University Foundation. In terms of both dollars receipted and, equally important, number of donors, this year’s Annual Fund marks the second highest on both measures in the last ten years: 2,207 donors contributed a total of $3,336,696 in 2009-10. Thank you for your investment in the Bishop’s experience.

In our Report you’ll read about donors, students and faculty and about the impact of your donations at the University.

On the topic of impact, there has been a change in our volunteer leadership. After 12 years as Chair of the Bishop’s University Foundation, Bud McMorran ’60, DCL ’04 is stepping aside. Bud has provided exceptional leadership, vision and stability, not to mention results: our Foundation has receipted over $36 million in charitable donations during his tenure.

I’ve had the pleasure of working with Bud for the past nine years; his advice and opinions are always clear, concise, and correct. The University community owes him a debt of gratitude for all he has done to support the mission, vision and values of Bishop’s. I am grateful Bud has agreed to stay on as a Foundation Director so we may continue to benefit from his wisdom.

George Hendy ’68 was elected the new Chair effective July 1, 2010. George is no stranger to the work of our Foundation, filling the role of Vice-Chairman since 2001. He has visited campus twice this summer to become better acquainted with the operations of the Advancement Office and to understand the challenges and opportunities ahead.

New to our Board is Jo-Anne Ryan ’84, Vice President, Philanthropic Advisory Services, TD Waterhouse Canada Inc. She brings a wealth of experience in the field of charitable giving in Canada, in providing individuals with opportunities to build legacies of helping others.

As we launch our 2010-11 Annual Fund and look to the future of philanthropy at Bishop’s, we’re well supported by strong volunteer leadership.

Thanks to Bud, George, and the many volunteers who give their time and expertise to Bishop’s.

YOU MAKE IT HAPPEN.
In the coming months we will begin one of the largest building projects in our history. With a $30 million grant from three levels of government we will modernize and significantly expand the John H. Price Sports Centre. This investment will be transformative for Bishop’s.

Following a comprehensive selection process, we have assembled an outstanding team to ensure this project is a source of great pride for alumni, students and the entire Bishop’s and surrounding communities. Two international architectural firms have formed a consortium to carry out this mandate: Peter Rose + Partners based in Cambridge MA and ARCOP Group based in Montreal.

Peter Rose is a distinguished architect who has designed the Canadian Centre for Architecture in Montreal, the Chicago Bears Football Headquarters and Training Facility, the Master Plan for the Old Port of Montreal, and the Sert Gallery for Contemporary Art at Harvard University.

ARCOP is a leading firm that works around the world and counts some of Montreal’s best known buildings in its portfolio: Maison Alcan, Place Ville Marie, Place Bonaventure and the Casino de Montréal.

Also taking leadership roles will be the engineers Teknika HBA and Cima +, both of Sherbrooke, and our project manager, Vianney Bélanger of COPRIM based in Montreal.

Throughout June and July over 80 people representing our University and other constituencies in the Townships participated in a consultation process. We developed a “wish list” for the new Sports and Wellness Centre and took the opportunity to discuss a vision for the future of the Bishop’s campus as a whole.

The priorities that arose from that discussion will guide us as we move forward, not only with the Sports and Wellness Centre but also with a master development plan for our campus.

We will remain true to our strengths and our heritage, while ensuring that Bishop’s continues to have one of the most attractive university campuses in Canada.

Preserve Bishop’s identity
The places we know and love – the Quad, McGreer, St. Mark’s, Divinity and Bandeen Hall – are central to Bishop’s heritage and identity.

Promote a walking culture
Establish Bishop’s as a place where walking, not cars and parking, takes precedence.

Connect our campus
Connect our buildings to one another and our campus spaces to the rivers and forests that surround us.

Make spaces for coming together
Spaces for meetings and spontaneous gatherings contribute to a vibrant academic and social life.

Create a visible campus
Most of campus life is hidden behind walls and doors. Much of it can, and should, be made visible.

Build a new campus entrance
Design a dignified entrance to the campus leading to the Sports and Wellness Centre and Coulter Field.

Focus on the hill
As the highest point and geographical centre of our campus, the area between Mackinnon and the SUB should be transformed into a hub of campus activity.

Improve food on campus
Two thirds of students now live and eat off-campus. Improved food service across campus is crucial to the satisfaction of our students.

Enhance College Street
The stretch from Queen Street to our campus evokes an industrial park rather than a quaint college town. College Street should look worthy of its name.
Rick Mercer came to national attention in 1990 when he premiered his one-man show Show Me the Button, I’ll Push It, or Charles Lynch Must Die. Mr. Mercer came to even greater attention for his role in the satirical news show This Hour Has 22 Minutes. His spinoff special Talking To Americans was the highest-rated comedy special in the CBC’s history. Since 2004 Mr. Mercer has been host of the CBC’s Rick Mercer Report.

Mr. Mercer is the author of the bestselling books Streeters and Rick Mercer Report: The Book, a collection of the best of Mercer’s “rants”. He has received more than 20 Gemini Awards for his television work and won the prestigious Sir Peter Ustinov Comedy Award. In 2004 Mr. Mercer was presented with the Governor General's Performing Arts Award, donating his $15,000 cash prize to the LSPU Hall, the theatre in Newfoundland where Mercer performed his early work.

Active in many charitable initiatives, Mr. Mercer co-chairs, along with Belinda Stronach, the Spread the Net Campaign which provides bed nets to prevent the spread of malaria among children in Africa.

He was the 2005 national spokesperson for Walk For Life, a series of 132 fund-raising walks across Canada that raise money for people living with HIV and AIDS.

Endowed with a remarkable talent for making economic and financial concepts understandable and personally relevant, Dian Cohen has enjoyed a successful career as an author and economic commentator.

Ms. Cohen is a respected and long-serving contributor on television and radio, first with the CBC and then with CTV. In 1968 she began a long-term position as a syndicated newspaper and magazine columnist on personal money management, economic and business affairs.

She has published several popular books on personal finance and economic trends and has been an educator, economic consultant and public speaker.

In the Eastern Townships, Ms. Cohen has been instrumental in overseeing the substantial growth of the Sherbrooke and District University Women’s Scholarship Foundation. In 2009 she was elected a director and governor of the Fondation Centre Hospitalier Universitaire de Sherbrooke and was awarded the designation of Grande Ambassadeur for her fundraising efforts.

A graduate of the University of Toronto and McGill, Ms. Cohen has been recognized over the years with many awards and honours for her work and community service, including being appointed Member of the Order of Canada in 1993.

Jean Perrault was the mayor of Sherbrooke from 1994-2009. In 2002 Sherbrooke underwent a historic amalgamation with the surrounding municipalities, making it the sixth largest city in Quebec.

From 1982-94, Mr. Perrault served as a Sherbrooke city councillor. He oversaw several major projects, including the establishment of the Société de développement économique de Sherbrooke. As President of the Union des municipalités du Québec (UMQ) from 2005-08, he signed an innovative fiscal agreement with the Government of Quebec, creating a partnership that will see Quebec municipalities receive $3.8 billion over seven years. He was also a long-time member of the Federation of Canadian Municipalities.

A former athlete and member of the national water-skiing and alpine skiing teams, Mayor Perrault was first a teacher and then the Director of the Service des sports and Director of the Centre de l’activité physique at the Collège de Sherbrooke.

Mr. Perrault also chaired a working group that led to the publication of the The Promotion of Healthy Lifestyles Among Young People. This study, submitted to the Quebec Minister of Health and Social Services, laid the foundation for the Quebec government’s action plan for the promotion of healthy lifestyles and the prevention of weight problems.

The Honourable Donald J. Johnston has alternated between his two passions: law and politics. After completing a law degree at McGill and graduate studies in Grenoble, he practiced business and tax law in Montreal, founding the firm Johnston Heenan Blaikie.

In 1978 Mr. Johnston was elected Member of Parliament for Westmount and served in the Trudeau government as President of the Treasury Board, Minister of State for Science and Technology, Minister of State for Economic and Regional Development, and Minister of Justice and Attorney General.

Mr. Johnston became the first non-European to occupy the position of Secretary-General of the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD). During his decade in office, he breathed new life into the world’s most influential international economic institution.

In 2006 he returned to legal practice as a member of Heenan Blaikie's International Business Law Group in Montreal.

In recognition of his accomplishments at the OECD, Mr. Johnston received prestigious awards from Japan, Belgium, Hungary and the Slovak Republic.

Mr. Johnston was appointed Officer of the Order of Canada in 2008.

A passion for theatre:
Marshall Button ’80 created a blue-collar philosopher to earn a living in his chosen field.

Over the years Lucien has evolved as an opinionated North Shore mill-worker and New Brunswick’s Blue-Collar Philosopher. Marshall has performed him over 1800 times from coast to coast in four different full-length plays.

According to a review in the Ottawa Citizen: “Marshall Button as Lucien is a cultural icon … Lucien is a kind of gift from Button to the rest of the country, an Acadian blessing of laughter and perspective and wisdom from the heart… Since he strolled on the stage, mangling the language but never the heart and soul behind it, Lucien has become a Canadian cultural icon.”

Concurrent with instilling Lucien in the hearts and minds of Canadians, Marshall served for ten years as Artistic Director of the Upper Canada Playhouse in Morrisburg ON, succeeding Mark Morton ’82 in the position. The Hon. Frank McKenna, nicknamed the “job poacher,” enticed Marshall to return to New Brunswick in 1996. Since then he’s developed a solid reputation as a witty host, a “toastmaster” in the province. He’ll figure prominently, for instance, in the activities of September 2010 when Moncton hosts a regular CFL season game between the Argonauts and Eskimos.

“A major highlight of my career was going on tour in Afghanistan three years ago,” says Marshall. “Performing on stage in front of 1500 troops with rockets whizzing overhead, I felt the danger of theatre as discussed years ago at Bishop’s when studying the plays of Jean-Paul Sartre.”

Marshall has been recognized for his theatrical achievements and role as the province’s cultural ambassador. He was named one of 100 exceptional people who’ve made a difference to Dalhousie in its 100-year existence and received an honorary degree from St. Thomas University in Fredericton.

When he was inducted into the Order of New Brunswick in October 2008, reporters asked Marshall what Lucien would think of the honour. “Well, you know something,” he answered, immediately slipping into character. “Dey told me I got da odour of New Brunswick. Je pense, I tink it is because I’ve been stinking up this province for so many year. I dunno.”
Coming from a hamlet in Alberta, Irina de Baghy ‘03 decided Bishop’s felt just right when she chose a university in 1999. Although she initially enrolled as an English major, she happened upon the Music department when lining up to register in her classes and asked if she could audition for the program.

Four years later, she graduated with distinction in Honours Music, as well as with Minors in Drama and English, winning the prize for top Music student of the year.

Bishop’s gave Irina a foundation to discern healthy from unhealthy technique and a wonderful introduction to musical repertoire and history. Her undergraduate years also marked the beginning of her passion for classical music.

“My training prior to Bishop’s was in musical comedy and jazz. I thought classical music was for snooty, old people,” admits Irina. “Now, I know better.”

In 2003, Irina went on a trip to Europe but, after a serendipitous encounter with a singing instructor in France, her short vacation was extended. Seven years later, she calls Paris home.

Irina has spent this time training as a virtuoso, taking master classes and earning various diplomas from conservatories in Paris, while also pursuing work as a mezzo-soprano. To make ends meet in the early years, she taught English as a Second Language to professionals.

“The greatest challenge in my profession is facing rejection 95% of the time,” claims Irina. “Although rejection’s not necessarily based on talent, I have to recover from it, be hard on myself, stay motivated and continue to improve, to move ahead.”

Irina cherishes the incredible support she has received from members of the Bishop’s community since her arrival on campus to this day. “First they were my professors, then they became my friends and now they’re my family,” Irina says of Ross Osmun, Melinda Enns, Jack and Pam Eby, Jamie Crooks and others. “They back me up, unfailingly, through the ups and downs.”

Irina enjoyed playing Carmen (in Bizet’s Carmen) at a summer festival in Poitiers – not simply because it’s a choice role but also as the company presented opera in a region of France that doesn’t often feature live music. She sensed joy in the audience of 600.

“As an entertainer, I love the moment on stage when you see the audience and an exchange occurs. From the expressions on their faces, you know you’re making them feel good for an evening.”

In this year celebrating the 150th birthday of Gustav Mahler, Irina will be giving a solo performance of Mahler’s Songs of the Earth before an audience of 3,000 in Dijon. She’s also performing in an opera at the national theatre in Bastia, Corsica later in the fall. Most recently, Irina won a prestigious melody competition in France.

Despite an abiding affection for Canada, Irina plans to remain in Paris for the foreseeable future.

“Europe affords huge opportunities to artists because of the large number of people living closely together,” she says. “I’m fulfilling my dream as a professional singer on the continent.”

In May 2010 Irina assumed a new role as a mother. No doubt her infant son relishes the lullabies sung by his talented mom, the diva.
SUCCESSFUL FREELANCE PROFESSIONAL ACTRESS living in Montreal, Cary performs in film, theatre, television and commercials, as well as lending her voice to radio and television advertisements.

“After my terrific experience at the best-kept secret in Canada, Bishop’s University, I furthered my theatre schooling at École Jacques Lecoq in Paris, graduating from a two-year program in corporeal mime,” says Cary. “I remained in France for two more years to work in theatre and film. To make ends meet I clowned on the streets of Paris and posed as a model for artists at Les Beaux Arts and in private homes.”

When she returned to Canada in 1990, Cary was ready to pursue her career, having learned, for instance, the protocol of the audition. Greg Tuck (BU Drama) hired her at The Piggery in a comedy called Run for Your Wife, which set a box office record for sold out performances that still stands today.

While Cary now works mainly in made for TV movies for the American Movie Network or Hallmark, she claims theatre is where actors are born, where they hone their craft and learn to stay in character. “Performing in at least one play a year is very beneficial to the craft.”

She enjoys the French side of the industry where there is freedom to experiment. “The French side tends to allow for bigger and more grandiose portrayals, inviting the actor to take chances, whereas the English side tends to be more conservative and safe,” reports Cary. “I find it challenging to see how far I can go with a character before the director pulls me back.”

Cary took great satisfaction in playing a blind Nun in a Sherlock Holmes film called The Case of the Whitechapel Vampire. “The production wanted to fix me up with contact lenses to make me ‘look’ blind but I insisted I wanted to ‘act’ blind. I won out, and the director to this day marvels at how I did it... I have no idea how I did it!”

A stage performance or a film role is only a quarter of what the audience sees: the preparation is huge and lengthy. “The prep is fun but can be difficult depending on your co-actors and the director (a director can be an actor’s director or an a--). It’s the luck of the draw.”

“There’s a lot of down time between gigs. For every role I land, I’m rejected ten times over. Talent can have everything to do with getting a role; it can have nothing to do with it. Timing. The colour of your hair. The chemistry with the director. These factors contribute to the magic that happens – or doesn’t – in the audition room.”

The fun begins when you land a role. “If it’s a theatre gig, you play with a family for six weeks or more. And your fellow actors really do become your family,” says Cary. “In film, the fun happens between takes when you are preparing to shoot the next scene or sitting around waiting...because there is a lot of waiting in the film biz. ‘Hurry up and wait’ is an all too familiar phrase on film sets.”

“In those times, you shoot the breeze with the other actors. If it’s a TV series, then you have that family thing happening again so you joke, you try to make actors laugh on set when they’re not supposed to. I don’t think there are many professions that allow us to play, have fun and get paid for it.”

Cary has also pursued the serious side of her profession as a council member and Treasurer for ACTRA Montreal and National Councillor for Montreal. “I’ve enjoyed becoming political and learning how our industry works on a higher level. I’ve lobbied on Parliament Hill demanding that our government change policies to allow for more Canadian content on our airwaves and to provide better funding so that we can create our own work, telling OUR stories, with OUR people.”

Cary admits to a ‘love/hate relationship’ with her industry. “I’m not alone in this feeling,” she says. “That phrase sums up the contradictions of my industry.”
Craig Taylor ‘99 came east from Vancouver Island to go to university because he knew he had to experience Quebec to become a true Canadian. As he liked small schools, he immediately took to Bishop’s. He had previously attended Malaspina College in Nanaimo BC, which at the time featured a logging program, a jazz music program, a hairdressing program, and a theatre program, among others. During his first year he helped out with a Sam Shepard play that featured a live sheep onstage. “No one in the cast could deliver a punch line, but the audience roared with approval each time the animal defecated onstage. It should have been a sign.”

Regardless, he continued to study theatre. Arriving at Bishop’s, Craig met excellent professors, one of whom cast him as a porn dealer who gets gasoline thrown in his face in a play by George F. Walker. Even though he had transferred as a third year student, he was able to get involved right away. “Within months I was a playwright, a backstage technician, an actor. I even was able to get a radio show during my first year at Bishop’s, taking the coveted slot before two Québécois metalheads who played black metal well into the night.”

Craig enjoyed a visit to Bishop’s in January 2010 to speak with Drama and English students about his career. “Everyone crows about the social life at Bishop’s but there’s an equally positive flipside. Bishop’s allowed me to retreat into a small town existence and especially into the stacks at the Library and the Music Room which still stocks old classic Caedmon recordings of Ian McKellen in The Three Sisters and Paul Scofield in A Man For All Seasons.”

Craig’s second book, based on a long-running column in the Guardian entitled One Million Tiny Plays About Britain, came out in 2009. Since then the short plays have been turned into short operas in Liverpool, produced professionally in Glasgow, performed on BBC4 and staged at festivals and theatres around the UK and the US.

Craig also edits a literary magazine called Five Dials, “which publishes the great and good and unknown. It’s a project that allows me to take the best elements of working at a magazine – editing, commissioning and writing – while dispensing with worries over ad sales and printing costs.”

The Foreman Art Gallery invited London, Ontario based artist Ron Benner to install a project on the front lawn of McGreer for the summer season. Benner’s work is made primarily with photographs, seeds and objects. He is interested in tracing ways back/towards traditional and natural ways of growing plants while also looking seriously at different agricultural systems today.

Composed of three distinct sections, the /10 garden includes: a long single row of field corn; a larger round section with open pollinated varieties of corn along with great diversities of flowers from the Americas; and a third section composed mostly of flowers. Information panels identifying the names of corn species and flowers are displayed throughout the garden.

Also within the garden, growing above the corn sections, are photographs of farmland from Peru and South-western Ontario.

The exhibition in the Gallery features work by the artist and a living topiary garden by Geneviève Chevalier, one of the exhibition curators.

Vice-Principal Michael Childs spent two weeks in China making Bishop’s and its programs better known, especially our system whereby students gain guaranteed admission to degree programs if they successfully complete a program combining English language training with cultural and academic preparation for Canadian university life.

The first contingent of students arrived in January 2010; an additional 18 attended English Second Language courses in May. Another 25 students are confirmed for Fall 2010, and a similar number will enroll each semester.

Recruitment efforts in Asia will expand in the near future to include India, Nepal and other countries.

Principle Michael Goldblom signed the Talloires Declaration in May 2010, committing the University to an international standard of sustainable development for institutions of higher education. Bishop's was Canada's 34th signatory.

The Talloires Declaration was drafted in 1990 by 22 original signatories meeting in Talloires, France. It is a ten point document which commits the institution to measures such as increasing awareness of sustainable development, practicing sustainability in the operations of the institution, fostering environmental literacy, increasing transparency through employing multi-stakeholder processes and maintaining the sustainability movement.

Bishop's is a leader in establishing and promoting environmentally sustainable initiatives. In the last year alone:

- Bishop’s students voted to eliminate the sale of bottled water on campus;
- the renovation/expansion of the John H. Price Sports Centre will conform to Leadership in Energy and Environmental Design (LEED) standards;
- the campus heating system will be transformed from natural gas to geo-thermal by 2011; and
- new composting programs redirect one ton of waste from the landfill to composting facilities every week.
Bruce Stevenson ’76 bids Bishop’s adieu – after 20 years

In many ways Bruce Stevenson represents all that is special about Bishop’s. A proud graduate three times, Bruce exemplifies the phrase “bleed purple.”

During ten years as Director of Alumni & Public Relations, Bruce expanded and developed the role of the Alumni Association. He introduced affinity programs that offer services to alumni while providing revenue to Bishop’s.

He started a Student-Alumni Association, engaging students in alumni activities on and off campus. He initiated alumni awards of merit to recognize professional achievements and of service to acknowledge volunteer contributions.

Bruce was the life of every party he organized, rising to the challenge, for instance, of planning 150 events to celebrate the University’s 150th anniversary. He brought the national conference of the Canadian Council for the Advancement of Education (CCAE) to Bishop’s; a raucous pool party at neighbouring Université de Sherbrooke still resonates among CCAE members.

In this job Bruce facilitated the work of two Principals, supported the University’s fundraising efforts, and improved the image of Bishop’s while dealing effectively with crises as they arose. As the University’s chief “friend raiser”, both among alumni and in the local community, Bruce was – and to many still is – the face of Bishop’s.

In 2000 he became Dean of Student Affairs, another important leadership role that made him responsible for ensuring a positive experience for Bishop’s greatest asset – our students. Under Bruce’s leadership, Student Services have become a model for universities across the country to emulate.

Bruce cares about each and every student. Despite the fact he went from organizing parties to curtailing them, students like and respect him. They know he puts their interests first. Many of the opportunities today’s students enjoy result from Bruce’s commitment to providing an enriching experience for all students.

For instance, Bruce established Bishop’s as a chapter of the Golden Key International Honour Society in 2002. 135 students became members in the first year.

As he matured on the job (although he looks as though he never ages), Bruce has become an elder statesman, a voice of reason and, at times, a moral compass for the University. He has been a mentor to students, a valued colleague to everyone working at Bishop’s, and a trusted friend to hundreds in the Bishop’s community.

On behalf of the entire University community, thank you, Bruce, for 20 years of exemplary service.

PRINCIPAL’S MESSAGE

Bishop’s takes pride in its intimate learning environment. And with 2000 full-time students, we are smaller than most universities. But our annual Donor Report reminds us of how big the Bishop’s family really is.

Listed in this report are the names of graduates, parents, employees and friends of Bishop’s who chose to give back in 2009-10.

Your charitable support allowed Bishop’s to provide nearly $1 million in financial assistance through scholarships, bursaries and internships. It helped our clubs, sports teams and the arts thrive. It purchased books, journals and other materials for our Library to keep its collections current. It helped to equip our science labs and to bring new technology to our classrooms.

Perhaps most importantly, your support sent a message to our students. You let them know that you support them and that their education is about more than simply acquiring knowledge. You told them higher education is also about making our world a more just, prosperous and sustainable place to live, and you are counting on them to do that.

Thank you for your support!

Michael Goldbloom

HANS ROULEAU ’97

As Director of Admissions, Hans witnesses firsthand the benefit of the Annual Fund for students: he assigns close to $1 million in privately-funded scholarships each year and knows some Bishop’s students need these awards to make ends meet.

Over the years Hans has chosen to direct his own gifts to scholarships and bursaries, the renovation of Centennial Theatre and Gaiter athletics.
Margaret Anne has been a steadfast supporter of the University and the Annual Fund for decades. A former member of the Corporation, she has donated to the Annual Fund for each of the past 23 years. Her gifts have been designated to the University's highest priority, Centennial Theatre, women's basketball and a fire relief fund. Bishop's thanks Margaret Anne for her commitment to her University.
Because

SEAN O’NEILL ’08

After graduating from Bishop’s, Sean decided to pursue a Master's degree in Political Science at Queen's University, but his thoughts never strayed far from his hometown of Lennoxville. When he heard that 23 students lost their homes in two separate fires, he wanted to help. Sean made his first gift to Bishop’s in support of the relief efforts to provide living essentials for those students affected by the fires.

THANK YOU

Dr. Jessica Riddell

As a professor of English, Dr. Riddell recognizes the value of bringing students together to share and discuss their work. With support from the Annual Fund, she organized the first-ever undergraduate conference for students in English departments of Quebec universities.

Held at Bishop’s in the spring, the conference attracted 70 top students from across Quebec, including 30 from Bishop’s, who presented their academic papers for critical discussion.

BECAUSE

Chris Forsythe ’99

Chris is an ardent supporter of Gaiter basketball, both through his charitable giving and his volunteer work. "Basketball had a significant impact on my Bishop’s experience," says Chris. "It’s natural for me to direct my Annual Fund gifts to the program."

“I also take satisfaction in seeing my charitable investment at work when I watch the Gaiters play or talk with student-athletes.”
Names in purple represent individuals who have chosen their giving from the previous fiscal year.

Two senior managers join the administrative team

On August 16, 2010 Victoria Miekle began her appointment at Bishop's as the Secretary General & Vice-Principal Government Relations and Planning.

For the last six years Ms. Miekle has been the Senior Policy Advisor to the Principal of McGill University, with responsibility for a number of dossiers including coordination of strategic and operational planning and liaison with the University’s senior administrative team, the planning and implementation of special projects, and the development of McGill’s positions on a number of key issues.

Prior to joining the Office of the Principal, Ms. Miekle held the position of Assistant Dean in the Faculty of Law at McGill, worked with an intergovernmental organization, and practiced law.

“Victoria brings a great breadth of knowledge and experience to this new role,” stated Principal Goldbloom when announcing her appointment. “As we institute a new governance structure, intensify our interaction with three levels of government and embark on a strategic planning process, Bishop’s will be well-served by Victoria’s many talents.”

Ms. Meikle holds a Bachelor of Arts and an LL.B. from the University of Toronto and a Master’s degree in Law from McGill University. She pursued studies in Law at the doctoral level at Oxford.

An extensive national search was completed in August with Dr. Jackie (Frost) Bailey ’95 being named Dean of Student Affairs, replacing recently retired Bruce Stevenson ’76.

An outstanding student-athlete at Bishop’s, Jackie graduated with a BA Psychology (Honours) and also played varsity basketball for the Gaiters. She continued her studies at McGill (MEd, specialization in counselling) and the University of Alberta (PhD Educational Psychology).

“This is an exciting time to be returning to Bishop’s,” said Dr. Bailey. “I look forward to this new challenge and am eager to make a difference in the lives of Bishop’s students.”

Dr. Bailey spent the past 13 years in Edmonton working in the fields of higher education and counselling. She has lectured at four universities, held the position of Director of Student Support for undergraduate students in the Faculty of Education at the University of Alberta, and has been both a counsellor and psychologist in education, health care and private practice.

Dr. Bailey has also remained active in athletics, coaching a college basketball team and playing competitive sports.

“Jackie will be a wonderful addition to our senior management team,” says Principal Michael Goldbloom. “Her passion for and belief in Bishop’s is unwavering, and I am sure she will inspire students and colleagues alike.”

Dr. Bailey and her family will make the move east to Bishop’s late in the fall semester. The campus community will be pleased to see her come home.

Forty-five years later, Persephone group still celebrates the arrival of Spring

At Bishop’s in the early 1960s, students celebrated the arrival of the Spring Goddess, Persephone, on March 21st in a very Bishop’s way. If the weather was nice and sunny, and in spite of any snow that lingered, we went to “Wino Hill”, near the tee of the first hole on the Old Lennoxville Golf Course, with our friends (male and female), and a gallon of “Queberac” wine, or Emu shooting sherry, and celebrated as Bishop’s students know how!

On March 21st, 1965, Peter Welsh ’64, Peter Watson ’64, and Ross Paul ’64 were in England at their favourite pub, The Anchor in Bankside, celebrating Persephone away from Bishop’s for the first time.

Over pints of courage, Peter Watson remembered a couple of friends who had torn up a dollar bill when they had a reunion and pledged to meet again at some future date to put the pieces back together. The three tore up a one pound note and agreed to meet at the Coc’n’Bell Pub in Montreal (the closest thing then to a British pub) the following March 21st at 7:30 p.m. They could not talk about this; it was very hush hush.

They continued this clandestine tradition for a few years, tearing up a new dollar bill (we had those then) each year. The practice of meeting every Persephone really got cemented, however, when Watson flew back to Montreal from Bermuda in 1967 or 1968 specifically for the evening.

The three then started sharing their story with others, suggesting they might be considered for membership if they met the stringent conditions – buy the original three drinks for the evening and keep the whole thing a secret. The late Brock Thomson ’65 was the first “new” member; he was followed by most of the rest of the group.

For years we met at the Coc’n’Bell, never mentioning the reunion in advance, and went to Ben’s for smoked meat and a Ben’s Special afterwards. In 1982 we introduced squash at the Atwater Club in the afternoon followed by dinner at Thursday’s on Crescent Street. Those who missed the gathering had to phone in from wherever they were in the world, and pay large fines. We eventually abandoned the squash tournament and started our current tradition of meeting at the Racket Club with trips to Hovey Manor when the 21st fell on a weekend.

To celebrate our 25th anniversary in 1990, we returned to the original site (The Anchor in London) with our spouses and partners. The money given by everyone over the years in fines helped pay for tickets to Miss Saigon and a gala dinner at The Anchor.

Thus started a new tradition of holding a special event every five years – 1995 in Bermuda, 2000 on Mayne and Lizard Islands, 2005 in Lunenburg and 2010 in Charlevoix. Instead of fines, we started investing money (relying on the fantastic financial acumen of several members); the proceeds finance these trips.

Peter Welsh has been the scribe, the photographer and certainly the glue that holds our group together. He has never missed a Persephone meeting and has catalogued every bit of trivia, gossip, scandal attached to the event, the group or its members. He can cite the time everyone arrived in 1973, whether or not any Bishop’s guests attended (many have over the years), how many points each of us scored in the squash doubles round robin, who won the trophy and who got the booby prize, the trivia questions of the evening et cetera.

With the evolution of technology, Peter has increased his communication, using e-mail to recognize birthdays and anniversaries; we now receive montages of photos – recent and past – to remember birthdays we are trying to forget. He is relentless, passionate, dedicated and … perhaps even obsessed. But we cannot imagine our Persephone tradition surviving without him.

It is a wonderful tribute, to Peter and to Bishop’s, that the close friendships we made on that small campus in the early 1960s continue to this day.

Awarding the 2009 Alumnus of the Year to Peter Welsh is fitting recognition of his leadership and support in an evolving story that, as far as we know, is unique in Canadian universities, let alone to Bishop’s University.

In my longstanding occupational capacity as film critic for the Montreal Gazette, I’m asked a number of set questions by a curious reading public.

One is “what makes you think you know anything more about movies than we do?”, to which I reply because I’ve been doing it for 23 years and see a whole lot more of them than you. Maybe 350 a year, with our city’s ridiculous number of film festivals taken into consideration.

Unless, of course, the question is posed by a film-school grad, in which case I waffle and move to question number two.

“I can’t believe you were watching the same movie I was. I loved it and you hated it.” For your information, a number of readers plan their movie choices around that very factor. If I hate it, they’re going to love it. And vice versa. Also, and this cannot be overemphasized as a basic requirement for all aspiring critics or university professors – I’m always right, and you’re always wrong.

A third is “how did you ever land a cushy job like that, and how do I get it?” I know, I watch movies and interview stars for a living, and am paid a pauper’s ransom to do so. Honestly, I fell into it. Or was gently pushed. And indirectly, I have Bishop’s to thank for it. Except on bad days, like after losing two and a half hours from the rest of my life sitting through Sex and the City 2.

Then I curse the day I ever darkened its hallowed doors of higher learning.

Here’s the story, briefly. The year was 1980. I was quietly minding my own business collecting unemployment insurance and playing mediocre tennis in lower Westmount when my old Bishop’s friend, Wendy Penfield, called about contributing to a now-defunct Montreal cultural listings magazine she was editing. This was not an entirely cold call. We’d taken creative English together at school, and her older brother Wilder ’69 had encouraged my pretentious efforts at poetry for the University’s literary magazine, The Mitre. Still, why me? To this day I have no idea. God bless you, Wendy.

One thing led to another, and I was later urged to apply for the position of pop music critic at the Gazette. For reasons that have to do with the professional dangers of spending too many late nights in then-smoky bars listening to very loud music, the post was being vacated in lieu of health and sanity. I sent in my spurious CV, was granted an interview, and got the gig. For which I thank Gazette staffer and BU grad Hubie Bauch, a journalistic legend even then, and one of the more respected, comprehensively gonzo voices at the paper and across this great country. Against all reason, he put in the good word.

Lalala. One more thing led to another and the film critic position came due, seven years later. With one ear partially blown courtesy of Lemmy from Motorhead and the unappealing future prospect of reviewing Iron Maiden for the 50th time from the comfort of my chrome-plated wheelchair, I jumped. And the rest is whatever’s happened since then.

How do you get my job, you repeat? To borrow from the late Charlton Heston, when addressing the National Rifle Association, you pry it from my cold, dead hands. Is that clear?

In fact, in the age of the World Wide Web, professions like mine are in mortal peril, anyway. My only advice is that which I followed throughout school and ever since – if you want to be a writer, write. Write every day and do everything needed to get published, in local print papers, radio, television and online. As a wise old bird at the Gazette once said “I can teach anyone how to be a journalist. I can’t teach them to write.”

One last question – apart from the old chestnut, “what’s your favourite movie?” which I never answer, because I can’t remember – is “who are your favourite actor/rock star interviews?”

Again, too many people and too many years to nail down. In vast generalities, music people tend to be easier to approach and down to earth; movie people radiate more glamour and mystique.

But the vast majority in both camps, even at the highest level of fame, are really no different than you or I, just richer and with better access to tables in good restaurants. And remember that they, too, started with a good word from someone when they needed it most.
