

10th Annual

GLOBAL AWARENESS WEEK 2019

Securing and Sustaining Our Food and Water

Monday Nov. 4 4:00pm Cleghorn (McGreer 200)	Public Talk: Brazilian politics: human rights violations and environmental threat Mr. Vinicius Alves Barreto da Silva University of Ottawa
Tuesday Nov. 5 5:30pm Bandeem Hall	F.R. Scott Lecture: Climate change and agriculture: plants, people, problems, promise Paul Manning, PhD Dalhousie University
Tuesday Nov. 5 8:00pm GAIT	Pub quiz: Sustainable Trivia Night This pub quiz will stretch your knowledge of sustainability of our global food and water resources. (To participate → donation of one item for the food bank)
Wednesday Nov. 6 11:30 am Nicolls 4	Public Talk: Towards a just, sustainable and well-nourished world: the work of SeedChange and the Bauta Family Initiative on Canadian Seed Security Helen Jensen, PhD National Research Program Manager, The Bauta Family Initiative on Canadian Seed Security, SeedChange
Wednesday Nov. 6 5:00 pm McGreer 100	Every Drop counts - sustainable water stewardship in an era of climate change Short Talk - Maxim Jacques (B.E.S.T. student) This short talk is focused on the challenges of sustainable water management in Peru Followed by documentary & discussion: 'In the Shadow of Drought' From this documentary centering on Southern California's looming water crisis we will explore the relationships between water management practices, climate change and societal expectations.
Wednesday Nov. 6 7:30pm Adams Room (Dewhurst)	Bishop's Debates: Securing our resources in a consumer world Come and watch the Bishop's Debating Society and faculty members debate side by side about the best ways to secure our food and water resources.
Thursday Nov. 7 11:30 am Cleghorn (McGreer 200)	Documentary & workshop: The Superfood Chain We increasingly hear about superfoods that have amazing health benefits, now explore the impacts that the superfood industry has on farmers and fishermen from around the world through this insightful documentary. Followed by a workshop event that further examines the implications of the explosion of 'superfoods' on food production and sustainability.
Thursday Nov. 7 5:30 pm McGreer 100	Public Lecture: Bees for the Future Miel MTL This talk will look at the importance of pollinators in maintaining our food ecosystems as well as the role of sustainable beekeeping and neighborhood honey collection. (Miel MTL manages 80 beehives in 30 areas with 65+ partners, including Bishop's University, in the Montreal & Quebec area.)
Friday Nov. 8 11:00am Library Learning Commons (LLC 105)	Documentary & Discussion: The Thinking Garden This documentary focuses on a women's farm in a village in N'wamitwa, South Africa and highlights social resiliency and viable alternatives to export-oriented agriculture in the challenges of climate change and poverty. There will be a Q&A after with Basani Ngoben, a researcher and assistant director on the film, following the viewing (video link).
Friday Nov. 8 2:30pm Johnson 153	Hosted by the Bishop's Environmental Club Agricultural Innovation Eric Bergeron, '99 Meet with this Bishop's Alumnus to discuss his involvement in the creation of several successful agri-tech businesses such as Smart Greens, Modular Farms, and ZipGrow.
Friday Nov. 8 2:30pm Cleghorn (McGreer 200)	Hosted by the Department of Politics and International Studies: Insights from the Canadian foreign service Greg Dempsey, '04 This talk will draw insights from Mr. Dempsey's career in the Canadian foreign service, including postings in Afghanistan and Canada's Permanent Missions to the United Nations in New York/Geneva.