

GUIDELINES AND INSTRUCTIONS FOR TRAVEL GRANT APPLICATIONS

TRAVEL GRANTS (TG) are competitively awarded to applicants giving paper or poster presentations at peer-reviewed, internationally recognized academic conferences.

The maximum grant available for any conference presentation is limited to $1,000. Costs overrun will be borne by the applicant.

1. ELIGIBILITY

Requests for funding for research and creative activities are encouraged from the following members of the Bishop's academic community (here listed in priority):

- a) Continuing members of faculty and continuing librarians, including sabbaticants¹;
- b) All other full-time faculty and librarians (i.e. temporary and sessional appointments);
- c) Contract faculty and retired faculty and librarians.

When a grant holder is no longer a member of the Bishop's University academic community (as in the list above), all unspent funds will immediately revert to the Senate Research Committee.

Given increasing demand for internal research funds, externally-funded researchers are encouraged where possible to utilize those funds. Should they decide to apply to the Senate Research Committee, they must justify why they need additional funding.

1.1 Deceptive publishers

If the work under consideration has already been presented at a previous conference, a travel grant will NOT be awarded, unless it has been the subject of additional research leading to new results. However, a travel grant may be awarded for the presentation of a recently published journal article.

Presentation at "predatory conferences" will NOT be funded or reimbursed by the Senate Research Committee. BU's researchers are responsible for conducting due diligence on the integrity, history, practices, and the reputation of the conferences to which they submit manuscripts.

It is not always easy to recognize predatory journals since they comprise low quality journals characterized by poor peer review and questionable editorial practices; as well as others that publish without peer review. Nonetheless, the steps below can assist you in determining if a journal or publisher is predatory or not. Ask yourself:

- Is the publisher's name clearly displayed on the Journal Website?
- Is the journal published by an established publisher or recognized professional society?
- Has the journal got a registered ISSN?
- Do you recognize the name of the editor-in-chief or members of the editorial board? Are they experts in your field of research?
- Does the website explain the peer-review process including timeframes for the peer review?
- Are manuscripts submitted through an online submission system?
- Does the journal provide a sample of the Copyright Transfer Agreement on its website?

- ❑ Is the Journal included in legitimate abstracting or indexing services or databases? If it claims so, you must check that this is true.
- ❑ Is the publication schedule clear and consistent?
- ❑ Are the journal's Aim and Scope clearly stated?
- ❑ Does the journal post a statement about its ethical practice? Does it appear to adhere to Principles of Transparency and Best Practice in Scholarly Publishing?
- ❑ Is the publisher a member of the Committee on Publication Ethics (COPE) or the International Association of Scientific, Technical & Medical Publishers (STM)?
- ❑ If Open Access, is the journal listed in the Directory of Open Access Journals (DOAJ)? Is the publisher a member of the Open Access Scholarly Publishers Association (OASPA)?

The above questions rely on your own ability to detect predatory practices. For more details about deceptive publishers, consult this resource made available by our Library:

2. CATEGORIES OF SCHOLARS

Funding is available for two distinct categories of scholars: emerging scholars and established scholars². For Travel Grants and Research and Creative Activity Grants, the SRC will assess applications from emerging scholars separately.

Emerging scholar: An emerging scholar is someone who has not yet had the opportunity to establish an extensive record of research achievement, but is in the process of building one.

Emerging scholars must meet at least one of the following criteria:

- a) have completed their highest degree no more than six years before the competition deadline; or
- b) have held a tenured or tenure-track university appointment or a permanent librarian position or one leading to permanence for less than six years; or
- c) have held a university appointment, but never a tenure-track position; or
- d) have had their career significantly interrupted or delayed for health or family reasons within the past six years; or
- e) have not been active in research during their appointment at Bishop's but be seeking to become so.

Established scholar: Established scholars are those who, since the completion of their highest degree, have had the opportunity to establish a record of research achievement.

¹ Funds requested should assist in supporting original research not connected directly with the acquisition of a higher degree. Specifically, applicants on funded study leaves or sabbaticals to obtain a higher degree are not eligible for support.

² We use the SSHRC definitions of an emerging scholar and an established scholar (<http://www.sshrc-crsh.gc.ca/funding-financement/programmes-programmes/definitions-eng.aspx#a12>).

3. EVALUATION

Proposals for funding will be evaluated under the following criteria:

- a) the significance of the conference within the discipline;
- b) the importance of the conference to the applicant's research program or creative activities;
- c) the likelihood of the conference presentation resulting in a publication, with peer-reviewed publications given priority.

The onus is on the applicants to provide detailed information on the quality and relevance of the conference they wish to attend.

4. APPLICATION

The SRC will hold two TG competitions per year, one in the Fall and one in the Winter.

Deadlines are:

Fall	October 31 st
Winter	April 30 th

Applicants can request funding for presentations given between October 1st , and March 31st.

Applicants may submit only one application per competition and may hold only one TG per year.

The application form is available on the BU Research Portal. It must be submitted electronically by clicking the SUBMIT button at the top of the screen.

Researchers should list their peer-reviewed scholarly publications or creative works using the standardized citation style of their discipline (e.g. APA, MLA). Double spacing should be used between each reference.
