BISHOP’S UNIVERSITY

"DIRECTION, CULTURE, COURAGE, STRENGTH"

The Editors Message

It is commonly said that history repeats itself. Our few years that we spend here at Bishop's is a snap shot of a time and space that has been, and will be paralleled many times. The photos that this year’s Quad staff have amassed is your snap shot, your life and times, your history, and your memoirs of the ever enduring tradition that is synonymous to Bishop’s University.

As the months turn into years and we all proceed down our respective pathways of life, I know that we can all be strong as we remember our alma mater, and the spirit, the comradery, and the big-time thinking that was so predominant in our education here.

Good Luck Friends.
A Message from the Principal

For many of you, your last year at Bishop’s has been my first. I am pleased that our paths through life have overlapped at least that much, - and that from time to time in the future they will come together again.

For those graduating, this volume will hold memories of a special time and place. Although we are blessed by attractive buildings in a delightful setting, it is people that make Bishop’s. “All that I have known is a part of me”. I know you will cherish friendships made and experiences shared in the years ahead. My thanks to you all for your innumerable contributions and every good wish for the future.

Hugh M. Scott
Principal
Bishop's: Welcome to the country club.

Dear Mom,

Please send more money.

I need it for books. -

Boy, are books ever expensive.

Bishop's is great.

John.

P.S. Can you send down:

my rain gear please.

QUENCHING A THIRST
FOR KNOWLEDGE OR
QUENCHING A THIRST
FOR BEER?
JUST VISITING -

After years of undergraduate and graduate academic involvement in the - often viciously - competitive environment of a large university, suddenly a new challenge emerged in my life: the opportunity to teach in a predominantly residential university, with small classes, an informal atmosphere, and personal contact with students — Bishop's! Eureka! After all those years of expending enormous energy on sustained growth rates and dynamic changes involving tens of thousands of students and hundreds of administrators, once again the promise of peace, of quiet, of detachment, of dignity: once again, small was indeed promising to be beautiful and rewarding; once again, one would be at the threshold of embracing pure thought and would find oneself face to face with the Opaque Spirit.

Within seconds of receiving this favourable news, I felt twenty years younger, invigorated and filled with the urge to create and to stand tall, especially when first taking in the physical beauty of Bishop's and its environment: the serene confluence of the St. Francis with the Massawippi; the expanse of the open countryside; the magnificent vista of the mountain ranges, from Orford all the way down to Jay Peak. Truly a unique milieu in which to make new friends and to reach out, on a personal basis, for new horizons of knowledge, should be enormous intellectual fun.

What will they be like, at Bishop's? A country club for the nabobs of landed gentry or industrial wealth and their children? A last redoubt for the irreversibly unilingual? The ultimate retrenchment in the fact of an increasingly uncertain political future? A haven for the young who never made it to a first-class university? An on-the-site centre for meditation about matters concerning ecology, natural laws, and human harmony? A training ground for those who by their commitment are farmers but wish to acquire the safety-net of alternative job opportunities? An assemblage of tired city-slickers who have nowhere else to turn in their quest for personal freedom and spiritual rejuvenation? Or any mix of any or all of these, but with an added strong emphasis on intellectual striving, on full development of innate talent, on a genuine commitment to participate in as well as to contribute to excellence in education, to goal-oriented leadership, to the highest return for society's (and one's own) investment into education, and, most importantly, to a better, and possibly greater, Canada?

After the initial excitement of September and the calm, reflective, settling down since then, the presumed images have started taking on the form of reality: Bishop's peoples create the perception of intimacy, of belonging, of being exclusive; once one of them, you belong, you have an intellectual and personal home. They're at ease with smiling, handshaking, and are pleasantly reserved about back-clapping. They do not reach out, preferring to respect your privacy; but neither do they appear engaged in self-centered or self-interested plottings or cliques. Their quietness seems not the expression of a sinister, untrusting, attitude but the manifestation of the need to think things out, within the appropriate time-frame (at times, frustratingly lengthy, for an observer from a metropolis) — perhaps because being rural implies smaller libraries, fewer books, and a lower propensity to indulge in information-gathering and to act out the role of a walking compendium of knowledge.

In what appears as great respect for their teachers’ knowhow, the students here barely ask any questions and never proceed to the blackboard, which is somewhat disturbing (in the eyes of the observer) because effective leadership implies a manifest ability to face and to meet successfully with critical audiences. Also, and contrary to their presumed rural lifestyle, many students here find it hard to get up when their respective rooster beckons to them for their early class — an attitude of nonchalance? an orientation towards leisure? or an expression of the belief that the crops do not need a daily dosis of manure and sprinkling in order to attain full bloom?

Cursive images at first, some of which have by now taken on the form of permanence: Bishop’s FEELS GOOD: it’s fun being here. But it also reveals itself as a fixed dimension in time: on an everyday level, it reveals very little pressure concerning growth and change, almost no revealed preference for the intellectual enchantment that is found in the concept of “small is beautiful”, and literally no need to construct a meta-window that would permit its peoples to look beyond, into the big, real, world and to attune itself to its pulsation.

In fact, Bishop’s deems itself, not the function of the external world, but its centre, its core. The trouble being that the main task of the centre is to give directions, to provide goals, and, most importantly, to inculcate the visitor with its unique sense of mission; because Bishop’s is small, which provides the basis for excellence; is exclusive, which should attract the best brains of our country, and occupies a key strategic location in this beloved country of ours, I.E. the sharing in and the total respecting of the duality of Canada’s founding nations, leaving the visitor with an exceptionally intriguing, last, fleeting image: will Bishop’s be contented to remain a watershed in this duality or will it peruse of its unique, personalized and individualistic, character to demonstrate to Quebec and to Canada that university education can once again become a quest for excellence in teaching and learning, an excellence which can be underwritten by the vigorous pursuit of achievement in research?

Silver Anniversary
The 1986-87 Football Gaiters had what proved to be their most successful season ever, playing under the spotlight of head coach Bruce Coulter’s silver anniversary year as the mentor of the Purple and White.

The Gaiters finished the regular season with a conference-tying 6-1 record. The Gaiters picked up steam by defeating perennial nemesis Queen’s in the playoffs and, in what was perhaps the best performance ever by a Bishop’s Football team, demolished the Carleton Ravens in Ottawa 38-19 for the O.Q.I.F.C. Championship.

Many of our Gaiters proved to be top guns this season: All-Canadian Tony Harris led the nation in yards passing. All-Canadian, Wally Zatylny led the league in receiving. was team MVP, B.U. athlete of the year and was also the most electrifying punt and kickoff return man in the nation. Simon Restall led the league in scoring with 75 points and was chosen as an OQIFC All-Star. The feared Gaiter Gladiator Defense boasted the likes of All-Canadians Leroy Blugh, Jake Vaughan, and OQIFC All-Star Mike Bremner.

With most of the team returning next year, team aspirations will be pointing to the Gaiters first ever appearance at the Vanier Cup and National Championship title.
Men's Basketball

The Men's Gaiter Basketball team enjoyed a year which finally saw them become league contenders.

The Gaiter hoopsters took a positive step in turning around the program and Head Coach Ed Pomykala feels that another Conference title is not that far ahead.

The credit of the resurgence of the Men's Basketball program deservedly rests on the shoulders of 1st team All-Star and QUAA Rookie of the Year David King and 1st team All-Star, Pierre Tibblin. The team will certainly be missing the likes of Senior Captain Mike Fisher who led the league in total rebounds and collected 2nd team All Conference honours capping off a fine career.

Something Special

This year's Lady Gaiter Basketball team reached great heights en route to an outstanding 24-4 overall record. Under the guidance of QUAA Coach of the Year, Andrea Blackwell, the Lady Gaiters breezed through league play with an 8-1 record which gave them 1st place honors. Unfortunately, one bad game in the playoffs did not permit the team to advance to the National Championships.

The Ladies will greatly miss the likes first team 1st team All-Star's Judy Lang and Kelly Tucker, but high hopes are resting in the hands of a very distinguished selection of rookies who are eager to take up the slack.

Men's Rugby
Women's Rugby
The Gaiter soccer team came up with one of their more competitive seasons in recent years. The team, under Head Coach, Archie Quick, finished with a 4 win 5 loss and 1 tie record and was one win away from making the playoffs.

Forth year veteran, Captain Paul German was the team MVP while exciting Amadeo Cercola led the team in scoring. With most of the team returning, the soccer Gaiters will be looking toward a playoff spot next year.

On behalf of the University community,
Bishop's extends its best wishes
to the Class of 1987
ALUMNI ASSOCIATION

There is life after Bishop's - participate in homecomings, class reunions, alumni travel programs and branch activities in almost every major city across Canada. Help your alma mater and reap the rewards of getting involved in student career counselling and student recruitment. An Alumni Newsletter keeps you in touch with the University and with each other. Put something back into the University by supporting the Alumni Annual Fund. Most importantly keep in touch with us so that we can keep in touch with you. The Bishop's University Alumni Association has lots to offer you!
